ABSTRACT

This guide describes the holdings in the manuscript collections, the university archives, and the American Foreign Policy Center, all of which are located in Louisiana Tech University's Prescott Memorial Library. The guide is divided into three sections. The first section, "Manuscript Collections," presents descriptions of 197 collections of personal and family papers, business and corporate records, photographs, diaries, original manuscripts, and other similar materials. The second section, "Collections in the University Archives," identifies 49 holdings of records, papers, and printed publications generated by the Louisiana Industrial Institute, Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, and Louisiana Tech University. These collections include the records of the office of the president of the university, as well as those of other campus divisions, colleges and departments; catalogs, bulletins, directories, yearbooks, and other publications issued by Tech since 1897; and numerous photographs of the campus, university activities, and faculty members. It is noted that the Special Collections Department also serves as a repository for books and periodicals related to the history, literature, and culture of Louisiana and the South. The final section presents a bibliography of the microform collections of primary materials in the American Foreign Policy Center. (MAB)

INTRODUCTION

The Department of Special Collections, Manuscripts and Archives and the American Foreign Policy Center located in Prescott Memorial Library, Louisiana Tech University comprise a rich source of primary research materials and collections which are available to all qualified scholars, students and the public. Researchers from throughout Louisiana and the nation utilize our holdings. Therefore, we welcome you to become familiar with and use our facility. Our staff stands ready to assist you in your endeavors and we appreciate your interest in the special materials which have been assembled.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS, MANUSCRIPTS AND ARCHIVES

The Department of Special Collections, Manuscripts and Archives began as the Louisiana Tech Archives in 1945 and has steadily grown through the years. Today, the department is dedicated to the collection, preservation and making available of materials which document and chronicle the history and development of Louisiana Tech University, North Louisiana, Lincoln Parish, and Ruston, Louisiana.

The manuscript division consists of approximately 200 collections of personal and family papers, business and corporate records, photographs, diaries, original manuscripts and other similar materials. The university archives contain the records, papers, and printed publications generated by Louisiana Industrial Institute, Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and Louisiana Tech University. Collections include the records of the Office of the President of the university, as well as those of other campus divisions, colleges and departments; catalogs, bulletins, directories, yearbooks and other publications issued by Tech since 1897; and numerous photographs of the campus, university activities, and faculty members. The Special Collections Department also serves as a repository for books and periodicals related to the history, literature, and culture of Louisiana and the South.

In order to continually improve the research collections of the library, individuals and other donors play a critical role. You, your family, your business and your organizations all have historical roots. To illustrate the full meaning of historical development, everyday events as well as great achievements should be preserved. What might be considered insignificant today may be of vital importance tomorrow in assessing our region's history and heritage.

If you have any historical materials, please let the Archivist have a chance to evaluate them before they are disposed of or destroyed. consider donating them to the Department of Special Collections, Manuscripts and Archives where they will be processed and indexed; secured from theft and deterioration; and used under close supervision.

The following pages will briefly discuss and describe the holdings in the Manuscript Collections, the University Archives and the American Foreign Policy Center. We look forward to assisting you! For further information, please write or call.

Bibliography of Holdings

Established by the Department of History and Prescott Memorial Library at Louisiana Tech University in 1989, the American Foreign Policy Center was created to help facilitate the study of the history of American diplomacy and foreign policy, to generate research publications utilizing its holdings, and sponsor a lecture series, periodic conferences and colloquia. Due to the nature of its holdings in primary research materials, the Center is unique in this region of the United States and helps fill for scholars a long-standing void. As the United States continues to be intimately connected to political, economic, social and cultural occurrences throughout the world, an understanding of the development and history of American foreign policy is vital.

The following titles of microform collections are available for research purposes in the American Foreign Policy Center located on the fourth floor of Prescott Memorial Library, Louisiana Tech University. For more complete bibliographical information regarding each of these microform collections, please consult the card catalogs located on the second and fourth floors of Prescott Library.

John Moors Cabot

Cabot, John Moors. The Diplomatic Papers of John Moors Cabot, a Collection from the Edwin Ginn Library, the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University, c1985.
JX 1706.A75 C32 1985

The papers of John Moors Cabot (1901-1981) provide a valuable record of more than forty years in the diplomatic service. Materials include embassy correspondence, situation reports, and interviews with world leaders. Major events covered include the Dominican Republic coup of 1930 and the rise of Trujillo, unrest in Argentina and the election of Peron in 1946, the controversy over Yugoslav aid to Greek guerrillas in 1947, the Chinese Civil War and the Shanghai situation, the resignation of President Quadros in Brazil in 1961, and the outcome of the secret United States-Communist China talks held in Moscow in 1962.

Missionaries in China

The Chinese Recorder, 1868-1941, 1986.
BV 3410 .C6

The Chinese Recorder, a journal produced by the Protestant community in China over a seventy-two year period, was the longest-running English language publication in that country. It is regarded as one of the most valuable sources for studying the missionary movement in China and the effect the missions had on shaping Western relations with and perceptions of the Far East. The collection is indexed by Persons, Missions, and Organizations, and by Subject.

Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files

The U.S. State Department Central Files are perhaps the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. Each part of the Central Files contains a wide range of materials from U.S. diplomats in foreign countries: special reports on political and military affairs; studies and statistics on socioeconomic matters; interviews and minutes of meetings with foreign government officials; court proceedings and other legal documents; full texts of important letters, instructions, and cables sent and received by U.S. diplomatic personnel; reports and translations from foreign journals and newspapers; and translations of high-level foreign government documents.

The Central Files also illuminate the internal affairs of foreign countries. For each country there are thousands of pages arranged topically and chronologically on crucial subjects: political parties and elections, unrest and revolution, human rights, government administration, fiscal and monetary issues, labor, housing, police and crime, public health, national defense, wars and alliances, education, religion, culture, trade, industry, natural resources, etc. The following titles constitute our holdings of Central Files:
